

Executive Biography*Jeanne D. DoddJeanne D. Dodd

Vice President
Regulatory Compliance
Deputy General Counsel

Primary Responsibilities

- Global responsibility for regulatory compliance organization, processes and activities, and for corporate governance policies.
- Leads Dow Corning's U.S. legal function and the global intellectual property function, which provides internal legal services and protects the company's intellectual property rights.

Experience and Expertise

Jeanne Dodd joined Dow Corning in 1990 following a successful career as a chemist, regulatory compliance specialist and associate general counsel at a chemical company in Cincinnati, Ohio.

In her early years in the company she focused on environment, health and safety, acting initially as lead counsel on product related legislation, and served as patent counsel to the Rubber Business. In 1994, she was named as manager of Environment, Health and Safety Law before moving into a role as legal counsel to one of Dow Corning's main business units. In these roles she led environment, health and safety communication strategies, and partnered with environment, health, and safety colleagues to develop programs to ensure compliance with many U.S. regulations.

For several years she represented Dow Corning's communications function on the Global Silicones Council and the Silicones Environmental, Health and Safety Council of North America. In 2001, she became associate general counsel with direct responsibility for global legal practice groups in litigation, labor, environment, health and safety. She was named as executive director for global regulatory compliance in 2005, in which role she has oversight of the company's regulatory programs.

Jeanne assumed the additional role as deputy general counsel in 2008. She is admitted to practice law in Michigan, Ohio, and before the United States Patent and Trademark Office.
