President and Manager, DCC Litigation Facility, Inc.

Primary Responsibilities

- Manage the Law Department.
- Oversee the company's litigation.
- Steward the company's Joint Plan of Reorganization, ensuring implementation in accordance with the Plan.

Experience and Expertise

Doug Schoettinger joined Dow Corning in 1994 as Managing Trial Counsel to manage the company's defense of breast implant litigation. Upon implementation of the company's Joint Plan of Reorganization, Doug became manager of the DCC Litigation Facility, a Dow Corning subsidiary established to defend medical device lawsuits brought by claimants who opt out of the Plan's settlement program. Doug has held a number of positions in the Law Department and, since January 1, 2011, has been responsible for the management of the department as Deputy General Counsel.

Before joining Dow Corning in 1994, Doug practiced law for 17 years in New York City, Los Angeles and Baltimore. In Baltimore, he was a partner in the firm of Smith, Somerville & Case and was chairman of the firm's product liability department; he also was a lecturer in civil trial practice for the Maryland Institute for the Continuing Education of Lawyers and served on the institute's board of directors.

Doug is admitted to practice in Michigan, Maryland, New York, California and the District of Columbia. In the federal courts, Doug is admitted in the Eastern District of Michigan; the Eastern and Southern districts of New York; the Northern, Central, and Southern districts of California; the District of Maryland; and the Courts of Appeals for the Second, Third, Fourth and Ninth circuits.
